

The Daily Rigour

Sun 15th October 2017

Issue No. 72

Your free weekly numeracy newspaper!

Glasgow scientists launch teacake into space

Thousands of people have watched a teacake voyage into space in a fun experiment. The Scottish confectionery went 21 miles up before descending. It landed in a tree in Galloway Forest Park.

It took 1 hour 30 minutes to hit it's peak altitude.
It then took 40 minutes to come back to Earth.

- (a) What was the average speed of the tea cake when it was travelling up into space?
- (b) What was the average speed of the tea cake on the way back down? (HARDER!)

American man owns 7 000 licence plates!

American car registration plates have become aluminium works of art and collecting them has never been more popular. A man from Virginia has "between 7 000 and 8 000 plates". He received his first aged seven!

In the UK, personalised number plates are a booming industry. Currently, you can buy the number plate RR16 OUR for only £291 - an absolute bargain!

To make it more affordable, the seller is offering to accept payment in 3 equal instalments.

How much will it cost for each instalment?

RR16 OUR

David Beckham Earns £35 000 Per Day Despite The Fact He's Retired!

According to reports, the former footballer earned £35 000 per day in 2016 thanks to deals with H&M, Adidas and Haig Club Whisky.

How much did he earn in 2016 altogether?

Give your answer in WORDS.

Netflix raises it's subscription prices!

Netflix is now raising subscription prices for new and long-time subscribers.

Netflix plans to start notifying members of the increase on the 19th of October and will also send the notices out 30 days before each user's next billing date.

The price of Netflix's popular streaming plan, which lets up to 2 simultaneous streams, will go up to $10.99 per month. That is an increase of a single dollar from the $9.99 rate.

Express this increase as a percentage of the current price. Round your answer to the nearest percent.

NETFLIX
ENTERTAINMENT

by Cdmasterworks Ltd