Student Flies From Newcastle To London Via Spain Because It's Cheaper Than Train

After making plans to meet up with friends in London, 21-year-old Joe Furness found out that even if he applied his 18-25 Railcard discount and booked in advance, the train trip to London was still going to set him back £78.50.

Being a typical, skint student Joe decided to shop around and soon discovered a cheaper way of doing the trip, one that even gave him an opportunity to get a tan.

After looking at plane prices, he found that he would be able to catch a £15.99 flight from Newcastle to Menorca and follow it up with a £10.99 flight from Menorca to London - with the 12-hour stop-over giving him the time for a day on the Balearic Isle.

How much money did Joe save by not taking the train?
