

The Daily Rigour

Sun 26th June 2016

Issue No. 6

Your free weekly numeracy newspaper!

Debenhams shares fall after sales dip

Shares in Debenhams have fallen by 6% after it posted a slight drop in sales. Before the drop shares cost £61. How much do shares cost now after the sales drop?

Mitsubishi forecasts huge loss in wake of fuel scandal

Mitsubishi Motors has forecast a net loss of 145 billion yen for the current business year in the wake of its fuel efficiency scandal. If the exchange rate is £1 = 139.93 Japanese Yen how much is this loss in pounds and pence?

Electric car sets world acceleration record

An electric racing car has broken the world record for acceleration by battery-powered vehicles.

The car took only 1.513 seconds to reach 100 km/hr (62m.p.h.). How many kilometres are there in 1 mile?

Round your answer to 2 decimal places.

China builds world's most powerful computer

A new supercomputer from China has topped the latest list of the world's most powerful machines. At its peak, the computer can perform around 93 000 000 000 000 000 calculations per second.

Write this number in words.

Wimbledon 2016 starts on Monday!

256 competitors dream of singles glory! There are equal amounts of female and male competitors. Each round consists of head-to-head matches with the winner from each tie going through to the next round.

How many matches would Andy Murray have to play in order to win the tournament for the second time?

by Cdmasterworks Ltd