Down the sofa?: 168 million old £1 coins not returned!

About 168 million round £1 coins have not been returned to the Royal Mint, nine months after they stopped being legal tender. The round £1 coin was replaced by the 12-sided version in October last year, with millions of the old coins being melted down to create the new ones.

But, while you can not spend the old coin, you can still take it to your bank and deposit it into your account.

The new £1 coin was introduced on the 28th of March 2017 to help crack down on counterfeiting, with one in 30 of the old version estimated to be fake according to the Royal Mint.

How many of the yet to be returned £1 coins are estimated to be fake?

Late flurry of signings lights up transfer deadline day

Everton, Fulham and Leicester all made big-money signings as the earliest transfer deadline in Premier League history came to life late in the day. However, the amount spent in the window by Premier League clubs fell for the first time in eight years, to £1.2bn.

Newly promoted Fulham made 5 signings on deadline day taking their total spend to £98.1m. How much did the other 19 clubs spend in total?
