

The Daily Rigour

Sun 21st October 2018

Issue No. 124

Your free weekly numeracy newspaper!

Theresa May says 95% of Brexit deal is done

Theresa May has said she is prepared to "explore every possible option" to break the deadlock in Brexit talks.

She told MPs 95% of the terms of exit were agreed but the Irish border was still a "considerable sticking point".

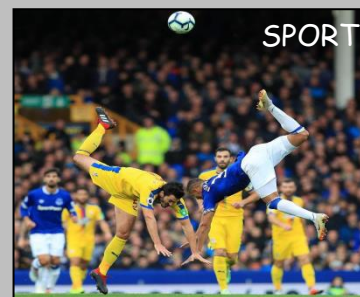

Write this figure as a decimal and a fraction.

POLITICS

Everton and Crystal Palace in "perfect" symmetry!

Everton beat Crystal Palace 2-0 at the weekend and the highlight of the match surely has to be this almost wonderfully symmetrical picture - even if we have no idea what the two players are trying to do!

SPORT

How many lines of symmetry does this stunning picture have?

Super Nintendo World begins construction in Hollywood

Construction has begun on 3 Super Nintendo worlds in Hollywood, Orlando and Osaka.

Completion dates are yet to be released regarding the American parks, but the Osaka Nintendo Land is planned to be ready in time for the Tokyo 2020 Summer Olympics.

ASIA

The original Super Mario Kart game sold 9 million copies worldwide and was released in Europe exactly 189 months ago today!

On what date was this game released in Europe?

Cdmasterworks Ltd

Return of the Mach; London to NYC in just $3\frac{1}{4}$ hours

When the supersonic jetliner Concorde was cancelled in 2003, there was no similarly speedy competitor waiting in the wings - but that is about to change now!

A new, screamingly fast airliner, codenamed Boom Supersonic, is now in the works.

Engineered by a crack team of inventors in Denver, this brand-new jet aims to travel the 3458 miles from London to New York in just 3 hrs and 15 mins!

For this to happen, what must the average speed of this plane be?

TRANSPORT