

The Daily Rigour

Sun 24th November 2019

Issue No. 181

Your free weekly numeracy newspaper!

The Coca-Cola Christmas Truck UK dates have been announced

It's that time again folks. You can now check whether the Coke lorry will be pulling into your area over the holiday period.

The truck stops at Asda and Sainsbury's stores across the UK.

On Wednesday, the lorry will stop at Asda in Pudsey, Leeds.

One week from this, the lorry will stop at Asda in Watford, London. On what date will the lorry be in Watford?

Sir Boyd Tunnock: 'Queen prefers teacake over wafer'

The creator of Tunnock's teacakes, Boyd Tunnock, has received a knighthood at Buckingham Palace.

The 86-year-old, who runs the family-owned business in Uddingston, South Lanarkshire, also revealed that The Queen prefers his snack over the caramel wafer, invented by his father.

The chocolate-coated marshmallow on a biscuit base was designed by Sir Boyd in 1956.

Did you know that Tunnock's produce 3 million teacakes every week?!

Among their other products, they also produce 5 million caramel wafers every week.

How many MORE caramel wafers than tea cakes do Tunnock's produce every YEAR? GIVE YOUR ANSWER IN WORDS.

Philippine students turn littered dog poo into bricks

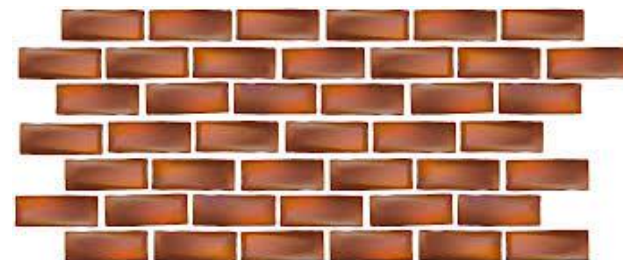

A group of secondary school students in the Philippines has found a way to convert poo from stray dogs into a mixture for bricks, aiming to rid city streets of excrement and potentially even lower construction costs.

The students say their "bio bricks" are ideal for pavements or small structures like backyard walls.

Each brick contains 10 grams of dog poo and has a faint odour that will fade with time!

How many KILOGRAMS of dog poo would be needed to build the brick wall below?

Poundland no longer sells everything for a pound!

a pound' price promise, making its name a bit confusing.

Now bargain hunters will be able to pick up products for 50p, 75p, £1, £1.50, £2, £3, £4 and £5 in the chain's 800-odd stores.

If a customer bought 8 items from Poundland, which all had different selling prices, how much change would they receive from £20?

Poundland®

Poundland has ditched its 'everything's