Scottish Premiership: Tickets sales comprise 43% of revenue

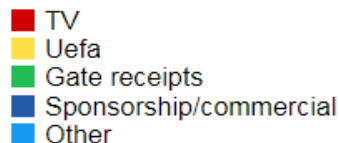

Scottish Premiership clubs earn a greater percentage of their income from ticket sales than any other top league in Europe, according to Uefa's latest Club Licensing Benchmark report.

The report on football finances states that 43% of revenue in the Scottish top flight in 2018 came from gate receipts.

This is topped up by the Scottish top-flight's broadcasting deal which makes up another 10% of its revenue, with Uefa prize money accounting for 18%, with the rest of the money coming from sponsorship and commercial deals.

What percentage of the income generated by Scottish Premiership clubs comes from sponsorship and commercial deals?

Today's date can be written the same forward and backward

Today's date, 02/02/2020, will be the first palindromic date of the new year.

Palindromic refers to a number, word or segment that reads the same in both directions and can be a very rare occurrence.

In the United Kingdom, we write the date in the format DD/MM/YYYY.

In this format, there are 29 Palindrome Days in the current century.

- Can you think of when the first palindromic date in this century was?
- Can you think of when the last one will be? (Much HARDER!!!)
- Can you work out the other 27???

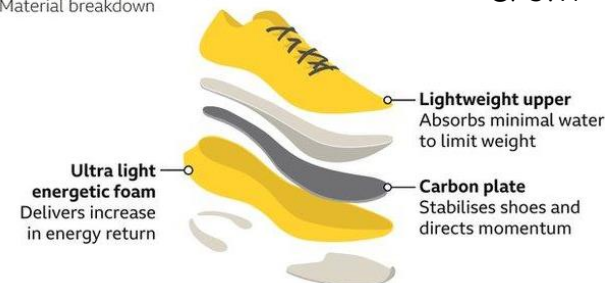

Nike's Vaporfly tech could change the track game

Nike's controversial Vaporfly range will not be banned but there will be tighter regulations around high-tech running shoes, World Athletics says. Any shoes that "may not be compliant" will be investigated.

Nike claim Vaporflys improve running efficiency by 4%. Write this figure as a fraction in it's simplest form.
