Scrapped GoldenEye 007 game 'remaster' leaks online

A highly sought-after remaster of the hit James Bond video game GoldenEye 007 has been leaked online more than a decade after it was cancelled.

Developer Rare produced the original game in 1997 for gaming giant Nintendo, and was working on an updated version for the Xbox in 2007.

But the project was scrapped because the various parties involved could not reach an agreement over rights.

GoldenEye 007 is the 3rd highest selling game for the Nintendo 64.

The list opposite shows the top ten and the number of copies sold.

To help you work out the names of all the games we have given you some clues!

The answer to the calculation/maths clue corresponds to the number of the letter in the alphabet, e.g. a = 1, b = 2, etc.

How many of the games can you work out?

'Smallest reptile on earth' discovered in Madagascar

Scientists believe they may have discovered the smallest reptile on earth - a chameleon subspecies that is the size of a seed.

It's length from top to tail is only 22 millimetres!

What is this length in;

(a) centimetres? (b) metres? (c) kilometres?

It turns out 88% of us have been pronouncing Nutella wrong all along!

As the world celebrated World Nutella Day on Friday, the team at Nutella has decided to end the debate on how the iconic chocolate hazelnut spread's name should be said.

BUSINESS

Nutella conducted a poll to see how Brits pronounce the word, and the results are in.

It was revealed that a whopping 88% of those surveyed mispronounce the iconic word - saying NUT-ella.

Whilst the remaining people in the survey pronounced it correctly as "NOU-tella".

(a) What percentage of the people surveyed have been pronouncing the chocolate spread correctly?

There are apparently 52 hazelnuts in every 375 gram jar of Nutella. 365 000 tons of the hazelnut chocolate spread is made every year.

If this Nutella was only used to make 375 gram jars;

(b) how many jars could be made?

(c) how many hazelnuts would be in these jars?
