Rishi Sunak becomes UK prime minister

Rishi Sunak is officially Britain's new prime minister after meeting with King Charles III at Buckingham Palace on Tuesday.

His predecessor, Liz Truss, was appointed Prime Minister on the 6th of September this year and resigned on the 25th of October.

She is the shortest serving former Prime Minister in history.

How long did Liz Truss serve as Prime Minister?

'Drinkable' Irn-Bru billboard appears in Glasgow city centre

A 'drinkable' Irn-Bru billboard appeared last week in the centre of Glasgow, giving those passing by the opportunity to pick up a free can.

The giant advert was a showcase for Irn-Bru Xtra, which is a lower calorie version of the iconic Scottish soft drink.

How many cans were in the display?

How did you count them?

Netflix ad-supported service to launch in November

Netflix is launching a new streaming option with adverts in November, introducing a less expensive offering as it fights to keep viewers.

NETFLIX

The plan will be available in 12 countries including the UK, US, Canada, Mexico and Australia and will cost £4.99 a month for the service in the UK

Disney

Disney is due to roll out an advert supported service in December in the US.

That plan will start at $7.99 a month.

easyJet Holidays launching 28 day all-inclusive holidays 'cheaper than staying at home'

The travel company says its 'Escape the UK' holiday package is cheaper than the rising cost of the UK household's monthly winter bills.

Data shows that the average person spends £877 per person, per 28 days on bills like rent, gas and electric, water, entertainment streaming services, food shop, takeaways and dinners out, Wi-Fi and travel expenses.

The holiday is priced at £650 per person.

- According to easyJet, how much would a person save by going on holiday for 28 days instead of living in the "real world"???
- According to the data, how much does it cost a person, per year, to live in the real world?
