

The Daily Rigour

Sun 28th May 2023

Issue No. 326

Your free weekly numeracy newspaper!

Junior doctors in Scotland offered 14.5% pay rise

Junior doctors in Scotland have been offered a 14.5% pay rise. The new offer from the Scottish government, which covers a two-year period, was made after negotiations with BMA Scotland.

The union will now consult its members, who voted in favour of strike action earlier this month, on the offer.

Express this pay offer as a fraction in its simplest form.

Two million litres of water drained from reservoir in search for phone dropped by Indian official taking selfie

An Indian government official has been suspended after ordering a reservoir to be drained so he could find his phone.

He dropped his Samsung smartphone in Kherkatta dam while taking a selfie, The Times of India newspaper reported.

Over three days, two million litres of water were pumped from the reservoir so he could retrieve it.

The waterlogged phone was recovered, but would not switch on. The water emptied from the dam would be enough to irrigate at least 1500 acres of land, local media reported.

On average how much water was drained from the dam per hour?

Give your answer to the nearest litre.

Roblox: Ten year old spent £2500 of mum's money without her knowing

A 10 year old girl spent £2500 on the gaming site Roblox after changing the password on her family's iPad tablet without her mum realising.

Roblox allows users to create their own games but also offers in-app purchases to upgrade the user's avatar with things like clothes or accessories and offers some pay-to-play games.

Tesco Bank initially refused a refund but reconsidered and apologised after a national radio station took up the case.

The girl had managed to spend more than £2500 on the site in small transactions of £20.

How many transactions did she make altogether?

Passenger arrested after plane door opened mid-flight explains he felt 'uncomfortable'

A passenger who was arrested after a plane door was opened on a domestic aircraft mid-flight has said he was "uncomfortable" and "wanted to get to get off the plane quickly", according to South Korean media.

He allegedly opened the door of the Asiana Airlines plane when it was 213 metres above the ground.

What is this height in (a) cm (b) mm and (c) km?